2. Worst Case – Month by Month

This is the careful, “things go slowly” plan. Self-managed.

Month	Nights Booked	Price / Night	Money Earned	Profit
Nov	14	9,055	126,766	67,480
Dec	15	9,642	144,623	82,396
Jan	13	8,803	114,441	57,765
Feb (Ramadan)	8	7,713	61,706	17,544
Mar (Ramadan/Eid)	8	7,546	60,365	16,283
Apr	11	8,132	89,457	30,869
May	10	7,965	79,648	24,169
Jun	10	7,965	79,648	24,169
Jul	13	8,552	111,171	46,241
Aug	14	8,803	123,244	55,070
Sep	11	8,132	89,457	30,869
Oct	12	8,384	100,608	46,631
TOTAL	139	~8,500	1,181,133	~499,500

3. Compare: Renting It Monthly Instead

Option	Money per Year	Effort
Monthly tenant (listed at 130,000/month)	≈ 15.6 L (asking price)	Very low
Airbnb – worst case	≈ 5.0 L	High
Airbnb – most likely	≈ 10.6 L	High
Airbnb – best case	≈ 17.3 L	High

Important: 130,000 is an asking price – the real rent may be lower. Even so, Airbnb only clearly wins in the best case. If you are renting this unit to put on Airbnb (paying ~130,000/month), you would lose money in the worst and most likely cases.

4. Things That Can Make or Break It

- 1. Building permission – Check that Pearl One allows short stays. If not, the plan stops here.
- 2. Power backup – Guests leave bad reviews if the AC stops during load-shedding.
- 3. Guest rules – Decide your policy (families only, ID check, etc.). Safer, but fewer guests.
- 4. Strong competition – Many 5-star studios nearby. Great photos, fast replies and good early prices matter most.
- 5. Fill slow months – Offer 25–30% monthly discounts for long stays (overseas Pakistanis, office workers).
